Overview

The Early Childhood Education Program at Confederation College is designed to give students a broad education in preparation for the meaningful work of caring and educating young children.

Through readings, observations, critical and self-reflections, discussions, and hands-on learning, students will explore perspectives, learn to think critically, and examine their work with young children in early learning and care environments.

Students will be provided with the skills and knowledge needed to plan environments that nurture each individual child and their curiosities through play and inquiry based learning. Students will also plan play-based curriculum and learn ways to build meaningful and responsive relationships with children and their families. Students will have the opportunity to make connections between the blending of traditional and contemporary theories and practice during their interactive in-class discussions, lab experiences in early learning programs, and their three field placements during the two-year program.

Top Highlights

- Program includes three block placements so that you can learn in real-world environments
- A demonstration classroom is used by faculty to create hands-on learning experiences for students to learn about curriculum and the development of young children
- Course content follows the most current and relevant trends in professional practice

Employment Opportunities

Graduates of the Early Childhood Education program work in a variety of settings including infant, toddler and preschool (child care and nursery school) programs; before-and after-school programs, kindergarten programs and primary grade classrooms; special education and intervention programs; Ontario Early Years Centres; Head Start programs, family supports; home child care programs; parent/child/caregiver drop-in programs; paediatric playrooms; and health care settings.
